THIS IS TOO MUCH.

A prisoner in a Brooklyn court had been discharged by the Justice for lack of evicourt. ROBERT PINKERTON Sprang for him, and after a scuffle in the court, during which the Justice pounded with his gavel in a vain attempt to secure order while the court officers actually assisted PINKERTON days. in his assault, this free man was handcuffed and made fast to his captor.

His lawyer shouted to him to fight for his liberty, since he could not get it any other way. And the outraged man did fight. PINKERTON and himself exchanged heavy blows, rolled around the floor in a tremendous struggle, and finally they rolled down a flight of stairs.

Then Pinkerron's minions came to the rescue, and the unforturate man was haled away while the police looked on like sheep. Can such outrages as this on the very birthright of a citizen be tolerated from this chartered outlaw? Is ROBERT PINERETON a law to himself ?

JOHNNIE AND HIS LITTLE WHISTLE.

JOHNNIE SEIDLER is five years old and has a tin whistle several inches long and an inch and a half in diameter. He has it in his stomach. Journage must have blown the wrong way, for, ther a joyous effort at whistling, the whistle slipped down Jounnie's throttle and lodged below. It did't take much to down the whistle but it will have to be excavated by surgery. In the meantime, if Jounnie is ever troubled with colic, he will drift around like a whistling buoy. Journie's stomach has an opportunity for a liberal musical edu-

The entertainment began with a scries of tableaux vivants. The young people looked very charming, most of the costumes being very becoming as well as historically correct and elegant.

The Queen Elizabeth of Miss Marguerite Pulls was a very striking bersonation, and the costume remarkable in its detail. Miss Burnett, of Newark, made a very fascinating cleopatra in a costume gorgeous in the extreme.

Miss Sophie Hanks was a charming Lady Washington, and Miss Mulls Keyser very classic and queenly as lielen of Troy. Miss Jennie Edwards as Marie Antoinette, and Miss Caste Smith as Isabella of Arragon were equally pathede and pleasing, as were Mary of Scotland and Jean of Are.

Miss Ethei Roby made a dramatic Caariotte Scotland and Jean of Are.

Miss Ethei Roby made a dramatic Caariotte Corday, and Mrs. Billings as the enchangers.
